

A letter was received from Messrs Duffill and Gibson, architects, in regard to the association's proposed new offices, and the meeting went into committee to consider same. It was resolved to inform the writers that the association did not intend to employ an architect in connection with the work and to request that Messrs Duffill and Gibson render their account against the association, when the same would receive consideration.

The meeting then went into committee to open and consider tenders for the erection of the new offices, and it was resolved to accept the tender of Messrs Hobbs and Baker, the building sub-committee to have control of the work.
